MUSIC & LITURGY NOTES: FUNERALS (PART II)

At the funeral liturgy, the community gathers with the family and friends of the deceased to give praise and thanks to God for Christ's victory over sin and death, to commend the deceased to God's mercy and compassion, and to seed strength in the proclamation of the paschal mystery. Funeral Masses begin with the reception of the body at the church. During the reception, one will observe an obvious relationship to a baptismal celebration. Before a funeral Mass begins, the Paschal Candle is moved to the front of the sanctuary and lit, just as it was when we were baptized. This candle reminds us of Christ's presence among us, his victory over sin and death (since it is first lit at the Easter Vigil), and of the promises made to us at baptism. If there is a casket, the casket is brought into the church and is placed in front of the Baptismal Font. Here, the priest will sprinkle the casket with Holy Water, another reminder of the saving waters of baptism. A white cloth, known as a pall, is then placed over the casket, symbolizing how we were clothed in white during our baptism. The use of the pall also (continued) indicates that we are all equal in the sight of God. For this reason, no other articles are placed on or near the casket during the Funeral Mass. The priests will usually wear a white vestment, a sign expressing our Christian hope in the resurrection. The casket is then entered into the church, the place where Christian life is begun in baptism, nourished in the Eucharist, and where the community is now gathered to commend one of its deceased members to the God. The church is at once a symbol of the community and of the heavenly liturgy that the celebration of the liturgy anticipates.

At Saint Jane's, before the funeral Mass begins, we allow time for a eulogy. While at other parishes a eulogy might be placed following Communion, it is now asked that the eulogy be addressed before the liturgy begins. Through the presence of Christ found in the Eucharist, Scripture, and the gathered faithful, the funeral Mass moves us from intense grief and loss, to hopeful joy and peace. Having a sad or unrehearsed eulogy after Communion can tend to negate the entire liturgy preceding it. Eulogies are not at all required as part of the funeral Mass, in fact, they are officially forbidden by the Vatican. However, recognizing that some families wish to speak about their deceased loved one to their gathered guests, most churches will permit this to take place under pastoral discretion. The priest who presides at the funeral will always give a homily during the Mass. And while the homily differs from a eulogy, most homilists make the effort to speak in a personal way about the deceased and to relate the scripture readings to the life of the deceased, so in the event that a eulogy is not shared, the deceased will always be spoken of in the homily.

Eulogies are a highly controversial topic. Why? Because often what is said in a eulogy might be contradictory to church teaching. Eulogy is Greek for "word of praise," but in the Mass, the only person we praise is Jesus Christ. Therefore, in the liturgy, we replace the title, "eulogy," with "words of remembrance." I remember back when I was in spelling class in the fourth grade, every time we began class, our teacher, Sr. Francis, would have us pray for the "poor souls in purgatory." We were all terrified of Sr. Francis and while we might not have learned how to spell much that year, I'm pretty sure that all of my classmates will remember the purgatory prayer at the beginning of each class. Sometimes, when someone dies, we automatically assume that they are in heaven. We actually don't know where they are, and the Church teaches that for many, a time of purification is spent in purgatory. During this time, it is the prayers of those of us still on earth that aid in achieving a soul's entrance into heaven. So, while during a eulogy, if we are sometimes quick to speak of our loved one already in heaven, then the deceased would have no need of a funeral Mass or for our prayers. This type of "secular canonization" happens often, and certainly not on purpose, hence why I'm writing these series of articles so that we can learn the hows and whys of a Catholic funeral Mass. Remembering that there are two purposes for the Christian funeral: "The Church through its funeral rites 1) commends the dead to God's merciful love and 2) pleads for the forgiveness of their sins," I often tell the person chosen for the words of remembrance that, in the context of baptism, his or her task is to give a kind of final report to the Church. The Church placed a candle into the deceased's or godparent's hand once, and said, "See to it that the flame of faith is still burning when the Lord comes." How did the deceased carry that flickering flame into life, how did they nurture it, share it?

SECOND COLLECTION: MAINTENANCE

The second collection this weekend, July 2/3, is our monthly collection to help with the repair and maintenance of our parish facilities.

POOR BOX

The Poor Box next weekend, July 9/10, will benefit SOME (So Others Might Eat), an interfaith, community-based organization that exists to help the poor and homeless of our nation’s capital. They meet the immediate daily needs of the people they serve with food, clothing, and health care. Four or five times a year, a group of St. Jane de Chantal parishioners buy, prepare, and serve lunch to hundreds of DC’s homeless and poor at SOME’s ‘O’ Street location. If you are interested in getting involved in this active ministry to the less fortunate, contact Maria Cornelius at 301-770-9880. For information on SOME, visit www.some.org.

PUT YOUR CONTRIBUTION ENVELOPES ON A PERMANENT “SUMMER VACATION” AND MAKE THE SWITCH TO E-GIVING.

By embracing this practice, you will simplify your giving and help provide our parish with consistent support.

This is especially important in the summer months, when families may be out of town and St. Jane de Chantal does not receive their envelopes.

It is easy for people to forget to catch up once they are back, and our weekly offertory can fluctuate as a result — making it harder to predict how much we will have to sustain our year-round ministries. Making the switch is easy: You can enroll online at www.faithdirect.net or pick up a paper enrollment form in the gathering space of church.

Our parish code is MD30.
